Indian Picture-Writing. Let us see how an Indian of North America goes to work to write. Suppose a wild Indian belonging to the great clan whose members call themselves the Turtles, makes a raid on a village of huts and wigwams owned by enemies belonging to the widespread clan called the Bear clan. Suppose it has taken the Turtles three days of hard travel through forests and over the hills to reach the Bears. By means of their crafty spies, they find that the brave men of the Bears are away hunting moose, and that most of the squaws and pappooses are either in the fields of malze or in the woods, where the ber-ries are ripe, and only a few old men and women are left behind to keep watch over some ponies and oxen. Then the Turtles, each clutching his bow, creep on the village under cover of the woods, and with a terrific yell rush at the wigwams. The old people run into the bushes, frightened almost to death, as you can well imagine. Then the Turtles gather up all the ponies and oxen, drive them off, burn all the wigwams they can, and hurry home with the cattle. Now these savages think Mr. Heffeer became the mother of seventeen children in that time, having twins in the first year of their marraige. The next year another pair of twins were born. Each succeeding year for four years thereafter Mrs. Heffeer became the mother of blg turtle, because he thinks that he and his clan are very great personages Indeed. Then he draws as many wav-Bear wigwams, and draws them upside down to show that they were destroyed. After that, he draws, as well as he can, a wee, wee bear, very small, in order to show his contempt for the Bears. Finally, he draws with the greatest care as many oxen and ponies as he has captured, because he is chiefly proud of this part of his ex-ploit and wishes all the world of the ploit and wishes all the world of the woods to know what a great and successful robber he is. He does not tell that the Bear braves were away when he surprised the camp, and probably does not care to tell that part of the does not care to tell the does not care to story. We may understand it from the absence of any sign for scalps. Had there been resistance and men slain on either side, the exact number of dead would have been noted by drawing just as many human figures without their heads.—From "Wonders of the Alpha-bet," by Henry Eckford, in St. Nicholas

Anti-Bohemian Oats.

The law rendering the Bohemian oats and kindred swindles subject to punishment is as follows:

"That whoever, either for his own obtains from any person anything of value, or procures the signature to any value, or procures the signature to any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, check, or any other evidence of indebtedness, as the whole or part consideration of the sale or transfer to such other persons of grain, seed or other cereals, which sale or transfer is at a fictitious price or at a price equal to or more than twice the actual value or market price of such grain seed or market price of such grain, seed, or cereals, or as the whole or part consideration for any bond, contract or promise given the vendee of any grain, seed or cereals; binding the vendee or any other person, corporation, com-pany, association or the agent thereof, to sell for such vendee any grain, sed or equal to or more than twice the actual value or market price of such grain, seed or cereals; and whoseever sells, barters or as the agent of any corporation, company, association, or per-son, any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, cheek, or other evidence of indebtedness, knowing the same to have been obtained as the whole or part consideration of the sale or trans-fer to the marker, indorser, guarantor, or surety on any such bond, bill, receipt, prommissory note, draft, check or other evidence of indebtedness of any grain, seed or cereals which have been sold or transferred to such maker, indorser, guarantor or surety at a fictitious price, or at a price equal to or more than dou-ble the actual value or market price of such grain, seed or cereals, or as the whole or part consideration for any bond, contract or promise given the vendee of any grain, seed or cereals, binding the vender, or any other person, corporation, company, association, or the agent thereof, to sell for such vendee any grain, seed or cereals at a fictitious price, or at a price equal to or more than twice the actual or market price of such grain, seed or cereals, shall be imprisoned in the pinitentiary not more than three years nor less than one year, or to be fined in the sum of not more than five hundred dollars nor less than one hundred dollars, or both, at the discretion of the Court.

A pound of bananas, it is said, conas more nutriment than three pounds of meat or as many pounds of potatoes, while as a food it is in every sense of the word far superior to the best wheaten bread. MR. HEFFNER'S BABES.

Forty-one Olive Branches Crowd Around One Man's Table.

[Reading (Penn.) Eagle.]

"Yes, it's so," said the man.

"Yes, it's so," said the man.
"Oh, John, you must be mistaken," replied his third wife,
"Well, I tell you it's so; I ought to know," was the empathic reply of John Heffner, who lives on Maple street, between Chestnut and Spruce, this city. A reporter for the Eagle had called upon Mr. Heffner to learn the correct history of his much-talked-about great brood of forty-one children.

Heffner is sparingly built, smokes a short pipe, and makes a living in the rag business. He is sixty-five years old and has a pleasant smile and cheerful greeting for all friends. The story of the man's life, as related by himself, is probably the most remarkable one on the cattle. Now these savages think they have done quite a fine thing in triplets. The seventh year was signobling their neighbors of their cattle nahzed by the birth of only one child. and plundering and burning their Mrs. Heffner died and was laid away and plundering and burning their Mrs. Heffner died and was laid away homes, as does one great nation in the village church-yard in Germany. Europe, when, like our Turtle chieftam, The widower had now a family of sevenhomes, as does one great nation in Europe, when, like our Turtle chieftain, badly counseled by wicked and ambitious men, it robs another of a great province, and forces the wretched people who dwell there to obey the laws of a nation they dislike. And they wish to let other Indians know what clever robbers they have been. So the Turtle chief chooses a piece of smooth, creamolored birch-bark, chews up a little tobacco to serve as ink, plucks a twig of soft wood for a pen, and with the tobacco juice draws the following pictures:—

Eirst comes a turtle, and it is a very blg turtle, because he thinks that he that part of the country. Five years passed by, and Mr. Heffuer's household was increased by the addition of ten more children—a pair of twins being born every year. There was now a full, and for three years thereafter only ing lines, to represent bows, as there are Indians in his party, and perhaps the same number of Indians with top-knots; his lines bend forward to show in what direction the trail went. Following these, a rising sun stands for was now the father of thirty two children that three days went by in going ing twenty to be taken in charge by a to the Bears. Next, he nuts down as widow whom he married in 1853. Mrs. to the Bears. Next, he puts down as widow whom he married in 1858. Mrs many funny little pyramids as there Heffner No. 3 had one child by a previous marriage. She become the mother of nine more children in ten years by single birth. His last, or third wife, is still living. None of the first set of seventeen children survive. Two of the fifteen of the second wife's children still live, and three of the third wife's nine. In a period of twenty eight years—1849, when he married, to 1868, has long since forgotten the names of his numerous progeny, and can only recall those in the late years.

Land. If not you had better have one made at once. It seems strange that farmers and others will buy and sell land with-out an abstract of title being made that would show a clear title to the possession to the land. How many farmers are there that have no papers to show a complete title to the "That whoever, either for his own they own? Of course it costs a little money to have an abstract of title made, of acres of land in Putnam County are changing hands each week, and it behooves the purchaser to ask for and re-ceive an abstract before closing the bargain. The following from the Sidney Democrat will show what carelessness on the part of owners or purchasers of land will do:

Readers of the Democrat will remember an item of last July in which reference was made to the discovery by Mrs. Susan Quiniinsk, of Orange township; that she had no title to 81 acres of land which she had purchased in 1882. In July she instructed Recorder Hudson Gartley to make an abstract of title for the land in question. He found her ti-tle to be defective by reason of there being no patent deed on the records. Further search developed the fact that her farm had been recorded as being in section 32, town 2, range II, Miami county, which originally had been pur-chased of the United States by John Rodgers. Her deed was designed to be for "one-half of the northeast quarter of section 32, town 2, range 13, in Shelby county," but by a blunder had for years been on record as in range 11 in Miami county. The 81) acres upon which she county. The $14 acres upon which she lived was bought from the State in 1832 by John L. Moore. The title was perfected by House Bill No. 4, introduced in the Legislature on the 39th of January by P Hunt, and signed by Gov. Foraker on the 2d of this month. It is a remarkable case of a form, now worth $6,000, having been operated fifty-four years and sold half a dozen times before its legal existence was established.

Prof. Horsford's Baking Powder Prof. H. C. White, State Chemist of Georgia, says: "I have been familiar for a number of years with the general character of Prof. Horsford's phosphatic preparations. Recent examinations made by me of the 'Acid Phosphate' in d'Baking Powder' show them to be exactly what is claimed for them in the circulars accompanying the packages. The 'Acid Phosphate' is a concentrated solution in water of acid phosphate of lime. The 'Baking Powder' is a mixture of acid phosphate of lime, carbonate of soda and flour. When mixed with water, carbonic acid gas is liberated and a double phosphate of lime and soda is formed, and remains in the bread when baked. In ordinary cream tartar baking powders the substance left in the bread after 'raising' is rochelle salts—a double tartrate of soda and potash. The phosphates are useful mineral substances in animal nutrition and growth, the tartrates are not. In my opinion, the Phosphatic Powder is, therefore, preferable to the others, so far as healthfulness-is concerned." of Georgia, says: "I have been familiar for Cupid's Postoffice.

Throngs of hurrying people were hastening along one of those great thoroughfares which traverse the metropolitan heart. The white glare of the electric light cast a corspe-like pallor upon the varied countenance of the scurrying multitude. A reporter stopped at a tobacco shop which was quite like the majority of its kind. The tomahawk of the figure at the door bore the legened, "I'li hit you real hard." Through the curtained doorway could be heard the twinkle of a mandolin. A muffled form went in. It was a brigandish figure, capped with a cylindrical hat. The reporter heard the salutation and answer:

"Buenas tardes, Senorita."
"Buenas tardes, Senor." Within five minutes the brigand reap-peared and a brace of letters which he had clutched in his gloved hand were had clutched in his gloved hand were there no longer. The reporter ventured to open the door and found himself in the peristyle of a Cupid's crosstown temple. The presiding priestess was dozing upon a divan behind the eigarette counter. Above her hung a case with numerous piceonholes filled with nerfumed letters of the hillet-doux kind. It was a "quiet" postoffice, and the senorita, was the post-mistress. Men came and went, bringing letters, leaving letters, wreathed in the same made-to-order beatific smile and all pronouncing in the very same manner "buenas tardes," which was the password. Suddenly a secret door opened from the denly a secret door opened from the hallway of the flashy flat house under which the dubious shop was situated. "Alma mia," murmured the young lady who entered with a heavy tragedy accent and a well-developed Delsarteau sigh. "A letter Rosie, or I die." A letter was produced, for Rosie never disappoints her paying customers.

Tranquilized, the young woman drew her veil tightly across her face. She had noticed the stranger. Then she asked of the senorita:

"How long since hubble was here."
"An hour ago," was the distressed response.

"Have you any more of those dear little cigarettes?" she articulated, and after pocketing a package or two the young woman was off with a rush. The reporter asked the postmistres how business was.

"Madre di dios!" was the reply.

"Thanks to the ever increasing progeny of fools, business is good, and the holiday season as yet not at hand. I geta dime for every letter delivered, and am so popular among my patrons that well the promision of the season is the season of the how business was. that-well, the perquisites are not in-considerable."

Then the reporter was permitted to examine the letters. Some were writ-ten in Fifth Avenue script and some from Hoboken or thereabouts. Some bore the name of a well-known club and others came from where the aboriginal tribe is worshiped exclusively.N. Y. Herald.

Au Important Discouery.

The most important discovery is that which brings the most good to the greatest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs, and colds, will preserve the health and save life, and is a priceless boon to the afflict-ed. Not only does it positively cure consumption, but coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, hoarseness, and all af-fections of the throat, chest, and lungs, yield at once to its wonderful curative powers. If you doubt this, get a trial bottle free, at J. C. Saur's drug store. Large bottles $1.00.

He Took No Risks.

"You say you live with your parents," said a china dealer who was putting a lot of youngsters through a civil-service examination for the position of errand boy in his establishment.

Yes, sir. "And you are quick at figures?"

"Yes, sir." "Now, suppose I had dropped around the corner to get lunch and a lady should come along who wished to purchase two dozen cups and saucers $1.50 a dozen."

"Yes, sir." "After agreeing to take the goods she hands you a $5 note. How much change would you return to her?" "Two dozen cups and saucers?" asked the boy, gazing toward the ceiling.
"That's what I said."

"She must be a bordin'-house keeper

"Never mind what she is. How much change would you hand her?" asked the "A dollar and a half a dozen?"

"Yes, yes. Now, then!"
"Don't you think that's pretty darn high for-"

"Never mind whether it's high or low. How much money would you return to the lady?" "But them five dollars might be bad," ejaculated the boy, winking at the store "We will suppose the bill to be good," said the dealer, sharply. "I don't see what one woman wants to buy all them cups and saucers for, anyway. When my sister got married she didn't set up housekeepin' with near "Tuen you can't give me the answer?

"What-'bout the change?"

"Yes, yes." "Come, what is the answer?" "Well," marmured the boy, shifting to his other foot and keeping an eye on the cat, "I'd just tell the lady to call 'round when you was in and get her change, for the bill might be a bad un, and I don't never take no risks."

"You're engaged," ejaculated the dealer.—California Maverick.
